

GOINGS ON ABOUT TOWN: CLASSICAL MUSIC

“WIND THROUGH THE STRINGS”

James Nyoraku Schlefer has become a regular presence on the New York scene, composing and interpreting new works for the shakuhachi flute and for Western instruments. He joins the admired Colorado String Quartet for a concert at the Tenri Cultural Institute that begins with music by Schlefer and Carlos Sanchez-Gutierrez and closes with Debussy's limpid String Quartet, Op. 10. The Colorado Quartet performs a program with music for string quartet and shakuhachi, plus the glorious Debussy String Quartet. Two works by contemporary composers Carlos Sanchez-Gutierrez, and James Nyoraku Schlefer blend the musical and cultural worlds of Japanese and European classical music. Mr. Schlefer is also the shakuhachi soloist.
